To: CRPO regarding changes to Professional Practice Standards related to confidentiality

I appreciate the chance to respond to the proposed changes regarding confidentiality as relate to disclosure of client information in "team" settings. A concern I have is with regard to the very final sentence which states, "The Member should report back to the client following the disclosure." The reality of increasing demand and presence of brief sometimes one time therapy sessions, such as provided by "walk-in clinics", which are now offered at area universities and agencies in increasing numbers may make it unlikely that contact with the client will be made after the disclosure to others in the "circle of care". I might suggest amending the requirement to reflect something such as, "When appropriate and possible it is recommended the client be informed of the disclosure."
